

COOLIDGE REVIVES WORLD COURT ISSUE WITH PLEA FOR SUPPORT

REED DENOUNCES GOV. HARTLEY IN PUBLIC HEARING

Legislator Resents Executive's Attitude Toward Members of House.

OLYMPIA, Wash., Nov. 20.—Representative Mark E. Reed, one of the strong leaders of the Republican Party in the State of Washington, denounced the tactics of Gov. Roland D. Hartley's Administration, at a hearing last night in fighting Representative Banker's bill to put reclamation matters under the State Land Commissioner's office instead of in the Governor's office as now.

Mr. Reed said: "It is not proper to criticize this membership without good reason. If Gov. Hartley made a further survey he would not recommend that the State get out of the reclamation game. I resent the statement of Gov. Hartley's Secretary Gardner that we are not fighting for the reclamation bill in the interest of reclamation but for consideration of other interests. Gardner pointed out that the lumber interests are mixed up in it and he proceeded to look directly at me."

Barkes Makes Charges.

Director of Conservation and Development Barkes read a letter from Ivan Goodner, former State Reclamation Engineer, at the hearing, declaring that Marvin Chase, when State Hydraulic Engineer, attempted to conceal his interest in the White-stone irrigation project in Okanogan County by transferring his stock. Goodner said he lost his place when he refused to put the Chase lands under the project. He said Chase told him that he, Chase, gave Rufus Woods, publisher of the Wenatchee World, a considerable sum, and that Woods would print any editorial that Chase demanded. The letter accused Dan A. Scott, predecessor of Barkes, of unbusinesslike practice.

SEATTLE, Nov. 20.—President George E. Ryan of the King County Democratic Club denounced State Senator George F. Christensen, of Skamania County, Democratic National Committeeman and only Democrat member of the State Senate, for supporting the policies of Gov. Hartley. He referred to him as "a tail to Hartley's political kite."

"As long as I am connected with the Democratic organization," said Ryan, "I propose to be pro-Democratic—a militant fighter for the progressive principles of that party. If I should surrender that feeling of loyalty and become a tail to anyone's political kite, I shall quit the Democrats, put out the fire whistle for good and go to the Republicans where genius is quickly recognized and consistently quickly forgotten."

Recent Cruise of American Fleet Promotes Friendship in Antipodes

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Nov. 20.—The recent cruise and maneuvers of the United States Fleet in Pacific waters did much more than contribute to the science of naval warfare and to cement the friendship of America with Australia and New Zealand, it developed at a conference of oceanographers and meteorologists at the Scripps Institute of Oceanography at La Jolla.

Dr. G. F. McEwen, physical oceanographer of the institution, said that before the Pacific cruise, tests of water temperatures between San Francisco and Australia, made available by merchant ships, averaged one test for every six miles, but now facts are available on thirty-two tests a mile for that route. The navy, he said, made more than 23,000 tests on its cruise. From these observations, Dr. McEwen said, he hopes to

"QUEEN MOTHER" OF ENGLAND IS DEAD.

Dowager Queen Alexandra

Dowager Queen Alexandra passed away today following a long illness and which took a turn for the worse late yesterday afternoon. She was always held in deep affection by all England and much anxiety was caused recently among the people when reports were issued from the sickroom.

Famed for Interest in Philanthropies and Welfare Work in England.

SANDRINGHAM, Eng., Nov. 20.—Queen Alexandra died today. She began to lose strength rapidly after a heart attack late yesterday afternoon.

Alexandra, widow of the late King Edward VII., of England, upon the death of her husband in 1910, became the Queen Mother, a title which has been in disuse since the days of Henrietta Maria, the consort of Charles I.

The eldest daughter of King Christian IX of Denmark, Alexandra was married to Albert Edward, then the Prince of Wales, on March 10, 1863, and for 38 years, during the reign of Queen Victoria, although somewhat in the background was greatly beloved by her adopted people. Born in Copenhagen, December 1, 1844, she went to England as the bride of the future king the same year her father was crowned the ruler of Denmark. She was then 19, a girl of rare charm and beauty, and, by reason of the frugality of her own family, of simple and unextravagant tastes. Upon the death of Queen Victoria, in 1901, when her husband ascended to the throne, Alexandra became Queen and reigned with him for nine years.

Adopts Title "Queen Mother."

Alexandra adopted the title of the Queen Mother in 1910 when George V., her son, and the Princess Mary were crowned upon the passing of Edward VII. For years, as Princess of Wales, her name had been associated with most of the great public benevolences and charities of England. On June 25, "Alexandra Day," each year, thousands of pounds were contributed by Britons the world over for hospitals and other similar institutions in honor of their royal patroness.

Although more than 81 years old at the time of her death, the Queen Mother never lost interest in her many philanthropies. During the World War she served as head of the British Red Cross, the Queen Alexandra Imperial Military Nursing Service, the Royal Indian Nursing Service, the Territorial Force Nursing Service and the Royal Nursing Fund, of which she was the

RENEWS APPEAL FOR ADHERENCE IN N.Y. ADDRESS

Urges Separation of Government and Business, Economy and Efficiency.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—President Coolidge renewed his appeal for American participation in the International Court of Justice last night in an address delivered before the New York State Chamber of Commerce. The divorce of Government from business fields, economy and efficiency in Government, and tax reduction, he said, were the things toward which continued efforts must be directed.

President Coolidge told the Chamber of Commerce that Government and business should co-operate to their mutual advantage but be completely independent, one of the other, always. He reiterated his belief that the times called for governmental effort toward greater economy in administration efficiency and reducing the tax burdens.

Wants Debt Adjustment.

He asserted that Europe could have no stabilized finances until debts to America were adjusted. Along these lines the President urged bankers to discourage foreign loans for unproductive purposes, such as for the maintenance of great standing armies.

Coming to the World Court and renewing his appeal for American participation in it, the President said he was of the opinion that to adhere to it might have small practical value now, but declared the sentimental value would be tremendous. He cited George Washington as a leader who did not hesitate to meet peril, encounter danger and make sacrifices.

Must Make Sacrifices.

Continuing his plea for the Court, he said:

"We must meet our perils, must enter our danger and make sacrifice, or history will recount that the works of Washington failed."

After the banquet President Coolidge boarded a train for Washington.

Major James Coughlin, White House physician, left for Plymouth, Mass., to urge Col. Coolidge to go to the White House as soon as possible for the winter.

Colonel Coolidge heard his son's address by radio at Plymouth and sent the following message: "I just heard you over the radio. Congratulations, fine speech."

"That's fine" was the only comment the President made when he received his father's message.

Reforms in Courtrooms Suggested By Alaska Tot to Seattle Judge

SEATTLE, Nov. 20.—Courtrooms "as is" want to do all. The judge's bench is elevated at too dizzy a height and the sombre black robes worn by the ruler of the court are too depressing, both need changing believes Little Miss Molly O'Neill, Alaskan, three-year-old granddaughter of Judge C. C. Dalton of the Justice Court, who presided over her grandfather's courtroom today.

After the arduous climb to the bench of the Judge Molly expressed her first opinion, that the bench was much, much too high, and the appalling sight of the long black robes to the three-year-old produced the second opinion that the dainty pinks and blues, worn by herself, were much prettier.

The whipping post apparently means nothing in her little life, but the hairbrush she affirmed has its uses as an instrument for administering punishment.

Little Miss Molly arrived in Seattle last Tuesday from McCarthy, Alaska, and is spending the winter with her grandfather.
